having provoked so direful an event. Nicholas Paulovitch, the son of Paul I. and Maria Feydorowna, mounted the Russian throne on the death of his brother, Alexander the First.

The Emperor Nicholas is distinguished by a giantic stature. by a handsome face, by a sonorous antic statute of a commanding look. He has displayed much energy and firmness of character, and an almost increditable activity. He possesses much affability, and many household virtues. Hence, maaffantity, her induced to forget, or at least to exculnate his ridiculous vanity. his ungenerous enmity. his unrelenting revengefulness, his insens, bility to the sufferings of his victims, and his in placable ha the sumering the freedom. The rich gifts Nature has bestowed upon him, his accomplishments and his pri tate virtues, have become the veit of his d sporie nets and the means of diminishing the indignation which his barbarous severity and his outrages against humanity naturally arouse in every gener-

But, though it is our duty to make fair allowance for the frailty of human nature and the strong temptation of uncontrolled power, we commit a grievous error if we accept a stately figure, an attractive countenance, a vigorous mind, an engaging deportment, and purity of manners, as apologies for the graci treatment of millions of human beings .indeed, the man whose heart seems open to all the endearments of domestic life, and still inflicts indescribable miseries upon thousands of fellow-men. guilty of no crime but that of loving freedom, is the more to be dreaded, as his cruelty is not a passion but a principle. Persuaded that he is discharging his duty, he feels no repentance, but triumphs in the agonies of suffering humanity.

If the Emperor Nicholas were a tyrant destitute of every virtue, and possessing an ungovernable temper. he would, like the madman Constantine, his prother, soon have exhausted the patience of human endurance. Hatred and contempt would already have brought home to him due punishment for the unjustifiable cruelties which he has caused to be inflicted opon so many of his fellow-beings; and there would be no necessity to drag him before the bar of public opinion, in order to rouse against him the indignation of the civilized world. But being endowed with so many qualities worthy of a great monarch, and subjecling his enmity and his revenge to reason, he insnires rather awe than aversion in those who are not thoroughly acquainted with his real character.

But the inhuman treatment of the unhappy Poles and the inexorability with which the few Russians who have dared to make the attempt at shaking off the voke of thraldom, or only roused his suspicion of cherishing liberal ideas, have been punished, cannot but render the Emperor Nicholas detestable in the eves of all sincere friends of humanity. Those who have taken the pains of making themselves acquaintthe sufferings of his victims must necessarily feel that he fully deserves the execrations which have re-echoed not only from the wilderness of Siberia and the mines of Ural, but from every country where the exiled Poles have found a refuge.

But these testimonies of the vindictive and despotic lisposition of the Czar, heart-rending as they are, do not provoke our resentment as much as does his open hatred to liberal institutions, and to the emancipation of the other European nations from oppression. Not satisfied with keeping more than sixty-five millions of his own subjects in abject slavery, and rendering them puppets of his imperial will, he has done everything in his power to strengthen the cause of despolism everywhere in Europe. He has been the chief instrument in preventing the amelioration of the social and political condition of the people of Germany, Hungary, and Italy. To him every crownel criminal looks for assistance; and in reliance upon his aid, such despots as the King of Naples and the Divine laws. But for him, Germany, Italy and Hungary would now enjoy the blessings of freedom.

REVIEW OF THE WILMINGTON MARKET, FOR THE WEEK ENDING JANUARY 5, 1854.

TURPENTINE-Since our review of Thursday last but very little Turpentine has come in, owing, we presurae, to the Christmas holidays. The prices remain the same as last quoted, and the transactions of the week foot up only about 1,052 barrels, as follows:

Bbls. Yellow dip ..$2 92 .. 2 92 ..$2 10@2 15 Thursday.... 192..$3 65 .. 2 10 Friday 700 .. 3 65 .. 2 92 70... 3 65 Monday..... Tuesday 90.. 3 65 .. 2 92 For three or four days past only two small parcels have been Sea Bird, ---, ldg., Boston, received, and the supply in consumers hands is very light ;-

some of the distillers have been compelled to stop operations in the absence of receipts. There is none now on market, and From the Port of Wilmington, for the week ending there is an active demand at quotations. Spirits Turpentine-Since our last review has ruled very unsteady, and the price has declined 2 cents & gallon on our quotation of last Thursday. There has been bet little doing in the article for the week ended to-day, and the sales generally have been confined to small parcels, (as they come in.) The transactions of the week are only 554 bbls., viz: Thursday 314 bbls. 57 cents # gallon. Friday..... 50 " 57 Saturday.... 50 " 55

Monday 40 " 55@55" Tuesday 100 - 55

We learn that there are several orders in market for the article at 55 cents, but sellers generally are holding for higher

Rosin.-But little has been done in Rosin this week, and the only transactions we hear of are as follows: On Friday, 100 bbls. at $2 50 for No. 1, and $1 50 39 bbl. for No. 2; Tuesday, 150 bbls. Common at $1 for medium size bbls .-There is a full supply of the Common article, and the market is dull at $1 05 for large size bbls., principally on account TAR-Has come in very slowly this week, and is in fair demand. The sales reach about 250 bbls. at $2 35 32 bbl. BEEF CATTLE-There is a fair supply of beeves in butchers' hands, and no demand-some small droves have come in this week, and sold at 5 cents 7 th. A prime article would command 6 cents. COFFEE-We have no change to note in store rates this week, and the supply is moderate. See table for prices, as in quantity and quality. CORN MEAL-The receipts of this article have been light, and it is selling from store at 85@90 cents 2 bushel. Corron-We hear of no transactions in Cotton during the past week. One or two small parcels have been received. out not yet sold. There is a moderate enquiry for the article at former quotations-9@10 cents # 15. EMPTY BARRELS-There is a fair supply of Spirits Turpertine barrels on market, and little or no demand. Last-sale we hear of was at $1 75@$1 874 each, for second hand; new ones held at $2@$2 25. FLOUR-In Northern brands we note no alteration in figures since last review. There is a fair supply in store, and Canal sells at quotations, as in quality. No Baltimore brands in market. Favetteville brands have come in very slowly, and stock in first hands light The price has advanced to $6 50@$6 621 7 bbl. for superfine-at which figures two small parcels changed hands on Friday last.

have heard of no transactions since, but the article is now held at $6 75 $ bbl., from store. ceived, which sold on Friday last at 77 cents B bushel.— E. J. Lutterloh. last week's prices. LIME -There have been no receipts of Lime for some time past, and there is little or none in store ; retailing at quota-Molasses .- We note the arrival on Monday of 200 hhds. new crop Cuba make, 75@100 of which bave been sold at 25 cents by single hhd , and 24 cents # gallon, in lots of 5 hhds, and upwards POTATOES.-But few Sweet Potatoes nov come in, and they are much enquired for ; sell from carts at 75@80 @ bush-

Provisions .- No new N. C. Bacon has as yet come in and there is still a heavy supply of old on market. There is high land, 250 or 260 acres of which is under cultivation, and but little demand, and sales are hard to effect at our quotations; we reduce our figures a shado. There is also a full supply of Western make iz store, and light demand; our since our last, and we now quote at 11@12 cents # tb .---PORK-Northern mass is in good supply, and sells from store at $16 50@$17 50 $2 bbl., as in quantity. Fresh Pork has come in rather sparingly, and is in demand; sales from carts at 6@7 cents # th, as to quality.

SALT.—Liverpool Sack is in light supply, and good demand;—250 sacks received on Monday, sold from wharf at $1 50 @ sack. Alum is very scarce, and only one parcel in market, which sells from store at 75 cents & bushel.
Shingles.—No receipts during the week, and but littledemand. Last-sales of Common were at $2 50@$3 # M.
